The Use and Abuse of RICHES.

SEEK not proud Riches, says the great Lord Bacon, but 'such as thou may'st get justly, use soberly, distribute 'cheerfully, and leave contentedly. Yet have no ab-'stract, nor friarly contempt of them.

In these few Words, if I am not mistaken, is comprised the whole Doctrine concerning the Acquisition and Use of Riches.

Proud Riches I take to be such a Proportion of them as may create or cherish a vain Pride in the Possessor. He that looks with Contempt upon those to whom Fortune has been less liberal or aims at Enjoyments from them that are out of the Reach of his Situation, Birth, Abilities, or Constitution, may be said to have proud Riches. The Poet has given us some Characters, wherein this Pride has extended to Crowns.

Wise Peter sees the World's respect for Gold,
And therefore hopes, this nation may be sold:
Glorious ambition! Peter, swell thy store,
And be what Rome's great Didius was before.
The crown o' Poland venal twice an Age,
To just three millions fixt modest Gaza's
But nobler scenes Maria's dreams unfold,
Hereditary realms, and Worlds of Gold.
Congenial souls! whose life one av'rice joins,
And one Fate buries in th' Asturian mines.

Mr. POPE to Lord Bathurst.

I must not omit what we are told in the Notes on this Passage, that the Peter here mention'd was a dextrous Attorney, and allowed to be a good, if not a safe, Conveyancer; as the Didius Peter is exhorted to imitate, was a Roman Lawyer, so rich as to purchase the Empire, when it was set to sale upon the Death of Pertinax. Gage and Maria were two Persons of Quality, who each of them, in the Time of the Mississippi, despited to realize above 300,000 l. both upon such Royal Visions as are here described. The Annotator adds, that they since retired to Spain, and were in search of Gold in the Mines of Asturias. But I have heard, tho' I know not whether with any Truth, that this Gage is the famous Count de Gages, who has been since better employ'd in the Command of an Army.

Did these Monopolizers of Wealth but once think with the same great Poet, certainly they would be drawn off from this Extravagance.

What riches give us, let us first enquire:
Meat, fire and Cloaths. What more? meat, cloaths and fire.

And ring the Changes upon them as long as we will, this is all they have to give us. Why then should they furnish Occasion to Pride? Since these are the Portion of all but the very miserable part of Mankind.

Our noble Philosopher does not teach a Contempt for Riches in themselves, but only for the Vices that are too apt to attend on, or arise from them. The Desire of acquiring them is liable to betray into Measures that are not strictly justifiable, tho' Fear of Punishment may prevent any infringement of a declared Law, and therefore he advises, that they be got justly. A Gratification of some sensual Appetite, or a vicious Inclination to hoard or increase, to the Extinction of all Bowels of Mercy towards our Fellow Creatures, and perhaps of Care for our own Persons, are equally apt to wait on the Possession of Abundance. For which Reason he admonishes to use soberly, and distribute chearfully. And as a foolish Attachment to Life, when the very Dregs of it are drawn to the Bottom, and every Passion is extinct but this of having is also common; the last Admonition, to leave contentedly is no less pertinent and wise than the others.

Superstitious is a Man of very austere and formal Deportment, always talking of Honesty, Justice, and doing as one would be done unto. When he makes a Bargain, if you tie him down to Terms, he certainly stands strictly to them and is very punctual in his Payments: But those who have once made a Contract with him, are always more cautious in a second, because if it lies in his Way to make a little Gain by cozening, which he methodically distinguishes from cheating, Superstition never fails to improve the Opportunity.

Certainly there were never such fraudulent Methods publickly used in the Acquisition of Money, as we have seen in our own Age. Who that thinks of Gaming and Extortion, can avoid remembering the Name of Charteris? That reflects on false Conveyancing, and does not recal the Image of Jephet Crook, alias sir Peter Strainger suffering the Amputation of his Ears for it at Charing Cross? Can we remember the South Sea Year, and not the Name of Blunt? Or the Charitable Corporation, and forget that of S——n?

These Ways of getting, were certainly all of them quite inconsistent with Justice, but the latter most notoriously bad, as it was a direct Abuse, to the contrary Purpose, of an Establishment made ex professo to relieve the Poor. But I would make one shudder to think, that even the Managers of these should come to such a Temper of Steel Insensibility, as the most describes, when he introducts them thus.

The grave Sir Gilbert holds it for a rule,
That 'every man in want is knave or fool.
'God cannot love (says Blunt with lifted eyes)
'The wretch he starves.'— And pious sir, denies.
But rev'rend S*'s, with a softer air,
Admits, and leaves them, providence's Care.

As to the sober Uses and chearful Dispensers of the good Things of this World, how few of them shall we meet with, in Comparison with those who run it to the contrary Excesses of Riot or Penury? In every Part, not of England only, but of the whole World, we see many beggarly Instances of the Effects of the former, and of others spurring on, with all the Strength in their Power, to Bargain and Dispatch, if not to Death. And as to the latter, I have been assured of one miserable Example, that may serve in the Room of several, of a wealthy Wretch worth his 20 Thousands, who obstinately died, perhaps an Hour or two before his Time, for Want of a little sugar'd Milk (his Favourite Food) because there was no Sugar in the House, and a Quarter of a Pound would cost five Farthings.

Verbosus is what we call a very sociable Man, and will be sure, when you converse with him, not to forget his own Riches. He tells you the many many cunning Ways he made use of in the Acquisition of them, and the great Care he takes in preserving them. But talk to him of generous and humane Actions, and he either laughs at you, or does not seem to understand your Meaning. To help another with any Part of your Fortune, in Verbosus's System of Morality, is to injure yourself at least so much; and yet Verbosus has no Child to inherit his Money.

The Examples of utmost Reluctancy to part with Life, when Money is the only Thing they are capable of enjoying, are so many, that it had been needless to quote any of them in Proof. If

Mr. Pope had not given us one occasionally with a great deal of Humour in Verse.

I give and I devise (old Euclio said,
And sigh'd) my lands and tenements to Ned.
Your money, Sir? My money Sir! what all?
Why if I must (then wept) I give it Paul
The manor, Sir? The manor! hold, he cry'd,
Not that, I cannot part with that,—and dy'd.

A vain Desire, in those who have merited nothing of Mankind to preserve on Marble the Memory of a Name that will ever be repeated with Contempt, if not with Execrations, is not less ridiculous than a fond Anxiety to prolong Life beyond Enjoyment. —But I shall give the Contrast of almost all these Characters in that amiable one of the Man of Ross.

Who hung with woods you mountain's sultry brow?
From the dry rocks who bade the waters flow?—
Whose causeway parts the vale with shady rows?
Whose seats the weary traveller repose;
Who taught that Heav'n directed spire to rise?
The man of Ross each lisping babe replies.
Behold the market place with poor o'er spread!
The man of Ross divides the weekly bread
He feeds you alms house, neat, but void of state,
Where age and Want sit smiling at the gate:
Him portion'd Maids, apprentic'd orphans blest,
The young who labour, and the old who rest.
Is any sick? The man of Ross relieves
Prescribes, attends, the med'cine makes and gives.
Is there a variance? Enter but his door,
Baulk'd are the courts, and contest is no more.
Despairing quacks with curses fled the place,
And vile attornies, now an useless race.

And all this, we are told in the same charming Manner, with an Estate of only 500 l a Year. Yet this good Man had not at his Death any Ambition of extending his Memory: For, as the Poet adds,

Who builds a church to god, and not to fame,
Will never mark the marble with his name.
Go search it there* where to be born and die,
Of rich and poor makes all the history
Enough that virtue fill'd the space between;
Prov'd by the ends of being, to have been.

BOSTON, October 28.

We have Advice from Newfoundland, that the French Men of War lately arrived there, had taken Capt. Adams in a Mast Ship from Piscataqua bound to England

The Massachusetts Frigate, Capt Tyng, had been arrived at Louisbourg with the Cloathing and Stores for the Garrison, near a Week before Capt Durell left the Place

BOSTON, November 4.

Extract of a Letter from Amsterdam, dated Sept. 16.

"We wish you Joy with the Grand Duke's Election. It is assured the Ambassadors of Prussia and the Elector Palatine, who have hitherto opposed it, have likewise given him their Votes, when they found that it would go in spite of their Teeth. Pray acquaint all Friends with it."

BOSTON, November 11.

Saturday last Capt. Le Fevre arrived here from Roatan near the Bay of Honduras, who informs, that as he was going into the Bay, he met with a Vessel who told him, that the Spaniards had taken the New-River, and were gone to the Old-River to do the like there, so that he returned home without a Freight.

Last Friday arrived Capt. Tufts in 6 Weeks from England, by whom we learn, That our Mast Ships and most of the other Vessels that sailed with 'em are arrived. That 11 Transports with Stores for Louisbourg, and about 600 Soldiers for that Place and Annapolis-Royal, lay ready to sail, and that 15 Transports were gone to Gibraltar to take on board a Regiment of Soldiers for Louisbourg. That a Squadron of his Majesty's Ships were cruizing on the Coast of Scotland, to prevent any Succours going to the Rebels, who were not numerous, and mostly Rabble. That his Excellency our Governor is appointed Colonel of one of the Regiments to be placed in the Garrison of Louisbourg on the British Establishment.

Mr. Timothy,

The following is a more faithful and impartial Account of Capt Shuldham's Treatment by the Spaniards, than what was inserted in your Gazette of the Week before last. Publish it in your next, and you'll oblige one who was well acquainted with that Gentleman, and is Yours &c.

Capt. Shuldham, in his Majesty's Snow the Blast, was taken by the two Xaveques after a bloody Engagement of four Hours, in which He left half his Men, and the rest (all to 16) were miserably wounded; the Officers of the Privateers had little Command over their People; Capt Shuldham was stripp'd, but afterwards his Cloaths were purchas'd and given him, by Don John de Cosmas, Commodore of the said Xaveques; being in Sight of Land they put the wounded Men into a Launch with the 16 unhurt and sent them on Shore, not having either Surgeon or Medecines to cure them on board, and the Surgeon of the Snow being wounded. The Man of War's People (to the last) cry'd out NO QUARTER, and never struck their Colours, which occasion'd the Disasters which afterwards befel them; but the very genteel Usage the Capt. received on his Arrival in the Havanna was fully sufficient, to make Amends for the aforesaid, He being entertain'd by the Governor, Admiral, and other General Officers, with all the Marks of Distinction and Esteem due to a Gentleman of his Character, but more particularly by Don Martin De Arostegui, President of the Royal Company, and Count of Buena Vista to whom the said Xaveques belong'd, who besides all the Civilities he could Render him, made him such unparallel'd Presents (for a Subject) that they might seem an Hyperbole were they here Specified—The Governor of the Havanna had an Account of all the Blast's Landing (by a Sloop who arriv'd and was trading at Trinidad on the South side of Cuba.)
